

The highly acclaimed one-woman drama
that combines the themes of mental health, life and death,
and spirituality and conscience.

‘TWO EMPTY CHAIRS’

True story of teenage tragedy and sacrifice
that became an Initiation
into the mystery and purpose of life

Written and performed by Kelly Connor.
Directed by Graham Dixon (Michael Chekhov Centre, London)

Adapted from Kelly's memoir
To Cause A Death
the aftermath of an accidental killing

This book is needed... a fascinating read. The Scotsman
Fascinating... there but for the grace of God. Daily Telegraph
An important book... beautifully written. This Morning, ITV
Couldn't put it down... gripping. BBC London
Compelling. Radio Europe

‘Incredibly powerful work that you are doing.’

‘Really appreciate it.’

‘Deeply moved by your story.’

‘Very courageous.’

‘Spiritual Narratives in Psychological Therapies’ Conference
St John’s College, Cambridge, 04/04/07

‘Excellent.’

‘Very courageous of you to present your experiences and to encourage reflection on such a difficult subject. The acting out of the story was particularly powerful.’

‘A privilege to listen to your experience, leaving me with lots to reflect on.’

‘Very thought-provoking, especially in relation to a relative of mine causing an accidental death 24 years ago. Makes me wonder how much he has ever been able to talk about it.’

‘Absolutely enthralling: I want to know more!’

‘Absolutely astonishing and exhilarating. I am very inspired by your braveness to speak so freely about your experience, and also your experiences of the mental health system, which unfortunately is still, in part, the same in some areas. The world needs more people like you to talk about their experiences and perhaps some psychiatrists should hear your talk, too.’

Clinical psychologists, Hertfordshire University, 23/11/06

Kelly Connor Ph: 01342 823820
E: kelly@kellyconnor.com www.kellyconnor.com